

BIO

Phillip Demond Fletcher is the founder and director of CoHO, a non-profit organization in Conway, Arkansas as well as the founder of Humanity Matters, an organization engaged in teaching people what it means to be fully human from a Christian perspective. Phillip frequently speaks and writes on issues concerning the local church, leadership, and social justice. He is the author of The Excellence of God: Essays in Theology and Doxology. He serves as an appointee by Governor Asa Hutchinson to the 20th Judicial District Criminal Detention Facilities Review Committee. He serves as an appointee by Mayor Bart Castleberry on the Conway Homeless Taskforce. He is a graduate of Arkansas State Chamber Leadership Class XII.

He holds an B.A. in Ethnic Studies from U.C. Riverside, M.A. in Theology from Liberty University, and a doctorate in Organizational Leadership from Regent University.

Website: phillipfletcher.org

Twitter: @philfletcher